GUIDE FOR EDUCATORS

Nengajo are special New Year's postcards sent to friends and relatives and delivered on New Year's Day. Much like holiday cards exchanged in the West, nengajo are an important part of New Year's festivities in Japan and are decorated with special greetings and seasonal illustrations.

The custom can be traced back to the tradition of New Year's visits (nenshi-mawari); during the first few days of the year, people call on friends, family, neighbors, and others who have shown them kindness to express their gratitude and well-wishes for the coming year. When the post office began issuing postcards during the Meiji period (1868-1929), New Year's postcards became a more convenient way of sharing New Year's greetings, and nengajo swiftly spread across the country. Today, Japan Post delivers about 4 billion nengajo a year.

Although digital versions now exist, the tradition of handmade nengajo remains popular in Japan. As the year draws to an end, families may create handmade nengajo together using traditional brush painting and calligraphy, stamps, and a little imagination. Nengajo designs typically incorporate the zodiac animal for the new year, traditional Japanese motifs like Mount Fuji and the rising sun, or popular characters like Hello Kitty and Mickey Mouse.

NENGAJO MOTIFS

- Takarabune: A treasure ship loaded with coral, gold, rice, and jewels. The ship carries the Seven Gods of Fortune.
- Zodiac animals: Japan follows a 12-year astrological cycle that originated in China. One animal represents each year in the following order: Rat, Ox, Tiger, Rabbit, Dragon, Snake, Horse, Sheep, Monkey, Rooster, Dog, and Wild Boar.
- Fuji, hawk, eggplant: It is very good luck to see these three icons in your first dream of the new year (hatsu-yume).
- Pine, plum, bamboo: Known as the "three friends of winter," these plants symbolize longevity, resilience, and renewal.

OSHOGATSU

New Year (oshogatsu) is a very special holiday in Japan, when people to return to their ancestral homes and spend time with their families. One of the most important and widely celebrated Japanese holidays, preparations begin long in advance as people clean their homes from top to bottom (osoji), prepare traditional food to be eaten during the first three days of the new year (osechi-ryori), and write New Year's greeting cards (nengajo). Although New Year was originally celebrated according to the lunar calendar, today New Year is celebrated on January 1st, in line with the Gregorian calendar.

OSECHI-RYORI

Osechi-ryori is a traditional meal enjoyed by families during the New Year. Each of the colorful dishes included in the meal is auspicious, representing things like good health and long life. The meal is beautifully presented in stacked bento boxes and served with a special hot soup (ozoni).

OTOSHIDAMA

Families present children with a gift of money in a special envelope (pochi-bukuro) on New Year's Day. The envelope is often decorated with the zodiac animal of the year or an auspicious motif like the maneki-neko (beckoning cat).

KAGAMI-MOCHI & KADOMATSU

Special decorations are put up for good luck during New Year's celebrations. One of these decorations, kagami-mochi (rice cake ornament) is made from two round rice cakes stacked on top of each other with a small orange on top. The decoration is set on a wooden stand as an offering to the gods.

Kadomatsu is another important decoration made of pine branches, bamboo, and sprigs of plum blossom tied together with a straw rope. It is placed on either side of the entrance to a home to welcome long life, good fortune, and prosperity into the household.

KEYWORDS GLOSSARY

HATSU-HINODE AND HATSU-MODE

Hatsu-hinode is the first sunrise of the New Year. People gather at beautiful locations around the country, such as Mount Fuji, to watch the sunrise on January 1st. The first visit to a temple or shrine in the New Year is known as hatsu-mode. On both occasions, people pray for good fortune in the coming year.

HANETSUKI & FUKUWARAI

These are games traditionally enjoyed by children at New Year. Hanetsuki, like badminton, is played with a shuttlecock and two wooden bats which are brightly decorated.

Fukuwarai involves trying to put the eyes, nose, and mouth on a face while blindfolded, like 'pin the tail on the donkey.' These games are less popular today, but the toys are often used for decoration at New Year.

LET'S TRACE JAPANESE! JICC, EMBASSY OF JAPAN

Here are some common phrases in Japanese that are written on Nengajo cards. Japanese has three writing systems: hiragana, katakana, and kanji.

This is the kanji character for Horse on the eto zodiac calendar. It can be read multiple ways: "uma / go / hiru."

令和八年 "Reiwa hachi nen"

Reiwa is the current and 232nd era of the official calendar of Japan. Reiwa 8 is equivalent to 2026, since the Reiwa era began in 2019.

あけましておめでとう! "Akemashite omedeto"

This is a shortened and casual, friendly way to say "Happy New Year!"

ことしよろしく "Kotoshi mo yoroshiku"

You can add this additional greeting to the phrase above. It is often translated as: "Best wishes for this year!"

MAKE YOUR OWN JICC NENGAJO!

Your 6 x 4 inch (or rotate this sheet for 4 x 6) nengajo design must have:

- A horse (your own original creation)
- The kanji 午 (for the eto, or zodiac sign, Horse)
- The year 2026 / Reiwa 8 (令和八年)

Designs must be original artwork. Any entries containing copyrighted, plagiarized, or AI-generated material will be disqualified without notice.

Include this info with your submission to jicc@ws.mofa.go.jp:

- Full Name and Age
- City, State, and Country
- If under 13: Written parental or guardian consent

A large empty rectangular box for drawing the nengajo design.

Your final design will be resized, printed, and displayed at the JICC in 2026!
